

Sell more in-store with sophisticated (but simple) AI.

CB4 Spotlight is the easiest, fastest, and most rewarding way for apparel retailers to sell more product & satisfy shoppers.

How it Works

Once a week, Spotlight sends stores a list of SKUs that they can sell much more of now. Each store's unique selling patterns and operating conditions determine the list—so no two stores get the same recommended products.

Sometimes products are underselling because of how or where they're placed. Sometimes there's a labeling issue or inventory discrepancy. Sometimes they're plain out of stock.

We don't slow you down with irrelevant, stale insights. We only highlight SKUs that will add significant revenue now. Stores make quick, easy fixes—like taking a product out of backstock or double exposing it on a face-out—to gain new sales and satisfy shoppers.

How Spotlight is Different

Retailers already use a few methods to try and uncover opportunities to sell more. But what do slow sellers lists, store walks, and traditional reporting all have in common?

They're a drain on labor, don't provide insights at the speed you need, and can't account for the local differences at each individual store in your chain. CB4 overcomes these limitations. And with Spotlight, communication goes two ways.

Stores respond to recommendations by sharing what they found and how they fixed it. Spotlight's algorithms use this to learn more about how each store operates and send more actionable, higher value recommendations over time.

Speaking of algorithms, you can't find our patented AI and machine learning algorithms—developed by leading scientists at the University of Tel Aviv—anywhere else.
